cessful Pioneer

FUNERAL TIME UNCERTAIN

(By the Associated Press.)
St. Paul, June 23.—Funeral arrangements for Alex. McKenzie, one-time political dictator of North Dakota, will not be made until Saturday, when both surviving children will be here. It was announced today that McKenzie died in a hospital here Saturday afternoon of complications.

Mrs. C. B. Foster of Montreal, a daughter, arrived with her husband
today. No decision as to the funeral will be made, however, until the arrival of the other daughter, Mrs.
Ann McKenzie McDonald of Quebec,
who is expected Saturday.

Many friends of the former political leader from all parts of the northwest are expected to attend the funeral.

A request that Alexander McKenzie
be laid to rest in Bismarck, where he spent the most active years of his life,
was made today by Bismarck friends in a telegram dispatched to St. Paul. A son of Mr. McKenzie is buried in St.
Mary's cemetery here.

The following telegram was sent to George F. Flannery, president of the Northwestern Trust company, St. Paul:
"Bismarck friends of Alexander McKenzie as well as his host of North Dakota admirers urge that his remains be buried in Bismarck. (Signed) A. P.
Lienhart, mayor; W. H. Webb, E. A. Williams; E. G. Patterson, F. H. Register,
C. D. Mann."

Capt. L. P. Baker went to St. Paul
Wednesday night to confer with Mr.
family.

Alexander McKenzie, whose legal residence was in this city, died Thursday afternoon at 2:30 in the Miller hospital, St. Paul, after an illness of only two days. He was stricken Tuesday with acute bronchitis and became unconscious Wednesday and never regained consciousness. News of his death came as a severe shock to his many friends and business associates
throughout the Northwest.

Gilbert Hagarty, who was in Bismarck Thursday said that he was with McKenzie Monday in St. Paul and Minneapolis. In the afternoon he drove to his attorney's office in the 800 building, Minneapolis, and expected to be called that afternoon as a witness in a land case. The attorneys were not ready and he was to have appeared Wednesday.

He returned to St. Paul after a visit with Judge Andrew Miller of Bismarck, who was in Minneapolis. In the best of spirits, he complained merely of a cold.

TRAYNOR NAMED
COMMANDER OF
STATE LEGION

Combination Among Northern Posts Too Strong For Bismarck Delegates

The combination among American Legion posts along the Great Northern railway—more than 80 per cent of the posts are on that line in northeastern North Dakota—proved too much for the Bismarck delegates at the state convention at Devils Lake.

Jack Traynor, of Devils Lake, unsuccessful in the past, was elected state
commander of the legion over George H.
Russ, of Bismarck. When the vote was completed and before it was announced
Mr. Russ moved Mr. Traynor's election
by acclamation. He asked the Legion men to give him the support "I would expect had I been elected."

Jack Williams, of Fargo, present
state adjutant, was re-elected over William Upshaw by a vote of 192 to 181.
Philip Bangs, retiring state commander, was named national committeeman
to succeed Major M. H. Sprague.

M. M. Campbell of Bottineau was elected vice commander. Other officers elected follow:

Treasurer, Roy Baird, Dickinson; Historian, Bill Jones, Lisbon; Chaplain,
Bill Upshaw, Jamestown.

Fargo, the home of Jack Williams,
who opposed Upshaw for state adjutant,
gave Upshaw 21 votes for chaplain.
Whitaker was chosen the convention city for 1923. There was no opposition.

SURGEON DENIES
GLANDS USED

(By the Associated Press.)
Chicago, June 23.—Denial that human glands were used in the recent operation on Harold McCormick,
chairman of the executive committee
of the International Harvester Company, was made today by Dr. Victor Leopold, the surgeon in the case. Dr.
Leopold refused to state what glands were used or further to explain the operation.

TRUTH ABOUT CUSTER BATTLE IS TOLD BY HEAD OF VETERANS

FIRST ACCOUNT OF THE CUSTER MASSACRE

TRIBUNE EXTRA.

BISMARCK, D. T., JULY 6, 1876.

By NEA Service.

Clay Center, Kan., June 23.—Indian
fighters throughout the country observe June 25, the 46th anniversary of Custer's Last Fight.

"Custer's Last Fight may well be called a milestone in the battle of civilization which resulted in the opening of the Great West," says Luther Barker,
commander of the National Indian War Veterans, who lives here. "It took this sacrifice to make the American people understand that there was an almost constant war in progress all over the west."

Barker scouts the idea that the Custer massacre had its "messenger of death."

Custer Blameless.

"Sole survivors of the Custer massacre have in the last few years become so plentiful as were Washington's body servants a generation or two ago. But there were no survivors of Custer's immediate command that day," he declares.
The only living thing that was ever found that went into that fight was Captain Keough's horse "Comanche."
"Comanche" was found several days later,
shot seven times, and was taken to the fact where his wounds were dressed.
But other survivors—no!"

Neither does Barker think Custer was to blame, and he quotes at length from orders to prove that Custer was but obeying instructions and acted as any other efficient commander would under the circumstances.

"The Seventh Cavalry, commanded by General Custer, left Fort Abraham Lincoln, near Bismarck, N. D., May 17, 1876.
It joined other commands on the Yellowstone near the mouth of the powder river. Here it was decided to again separate the Seventh from the main body,"
he narrates.

"Orders to Custer, given in general
language, were to circuit to the Upper Rosebud, where he was to rejoin the other commands. It was hoped that Custer's command and a column under Colonel Gibbons would surround the Sioux on the Little Horn.

"Believing the Indians were in the valley of the Little Big Horn and not more than 800 strong, Custer's immediate command crossed the divide at 8
a. m. June 25. With Custer were troops
C, E, F, I and L, the others having been dispatched under subordinate commanders."

"The massacre, the boys fighting
every inch like the true-blue warriors
they were."

And Barker's eyes gleam with the pride of comradeship as he concludes:
"Yes, sir, the Seventh Cavalry upheld
its reputation as fighters—when General
Gibbons' column found the battlefield, the different troops were dead in lines,
almost company front, with their officers
in proper position."

TWO DROWNED
IN CANNONBALL

Two Girls Lose Lives Trying To Save Younger Sisters

Mahdan, N. D., June 23.—Making an attempt to rescue two young sisters, Sophia and Dorothy, fifteen and nineteen-year-old daughters of Fred Herzog
of Shields, lost their lives in the swift waters of the Cannonball river near here late yesterday.

The four girls were on the edge of the river, fifty feet from their home
when the two younger sisters slipped and fell into the stream. The two older girls jumped in in an effort to rescue them
and were caught by the swift current and carried down stream. Their screams attracted the attention of a brother who vainly dove in an attempt to locate the bodies while there still was hope of resuscitation.

The two younger girls, in the meantime, were carried by the current close to the shore and caught hold of some willows and hung on until they were rescued.

PIONEER EFFORTS OF ALEX. MCKENZIE
FOR BISMARCK RECOUNTED BY FRIENDS

City Owes Much To His Faith in City and in North Dakota, Say
Friends—Took Active Part in Locating Capital Here—
Word Good as Gold, His Friends Say

Pioneers of Bismarck, who knew Alexander McKenzie in the early days, today recounted many incidents of his part in pioneer life and politics. The thread which runs through all of their statements emphasized McKenzie's faith in the country and in Bismarck, that he brought Bismarck about everything it has in institutions, that his word was never broken and that he dispensed charity in scores of instances without anyone knowing of his act except himself and the person aided.

In the hectic days of early day politics Mr. McKenzie, these pioneers say, achieved a reputation few men have held in politics—he never broke a promise and never deserted a friend. He believed in the future of Dakota territory and thought Bismarck some day
would become a great city.

Mr. McKenzie and Gen. E. A. Williams
were the two men most responsible for the territorial capital being located in Bismarck, according to W. E. Falconer.
Mr. McKenzie was instrumental in locating the state penitentiary in Bismarck; he and Mr. Mellon evolved the plan for the first St. Alexis hospital;
and sold the sisters a building they had built for a song so that the hospital
might be started; he organized the exhibit of Gaul and Rain in the Fair at
New Orleans exhibit which advertised
North Dakota nationally and sent exhibits showing the greatness of the territory and state into all parts of the country.

Helped Out Farmers.
Mr. Falconer related an incident of his charity. He said that when crop failures had put settlers in hard straits
Mr. McKenzie loaned $20,000 to farmers of Burleigh county to buy seed, and little of the money was ever returned.

CHILE ACCEPTS
U. S. SUGGESTION

(By the Associated Press.)
Washington, June 23.—Chile has indicated to the American state department her willingness to accept in principle the compromise plan suggested by Secretary Hughes for arbitration of the Chilean-Peruvian question over Tumacacha.

Peru's reply still waits on final advice from Lima but there was every indication today that she also would accept within a day or two.

MAY PROBE
"GAS" PRICES

Washington, June 23.—Plans for the senate investigation into gasoline price increases moved forward a step today
with the appointment by the manufacturers committee to submit questionnaires to all interests on gas and oil holdings. Mr. Ebo is a former law partner of Senator La Follette, Republican,
Wisconsin, chairman of the committee.

DENY NEW TRIAL

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—The fact that an attorney in addressing the jury
expressed the opinion that the evidence sustained the case of his client, is not sufficient grounds for a new trial, according to the supreme court's decision
in the case of Joseph Regalia against the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste.
Marie railroad company. The verdict for Regalia was affirmed. The case was appealed out of the St. Louis county district court.

Another friend who did not want his name used told a story of aid given by Mr. McKenzie to him and his brother.

"When a team of my brother was taken from the train while being sent to forces in the 'Real Rebellion' in Canada because there was a mortgage of $500 on it Mr. McKenzie wrote his check for $500 and told my brother he could pay him back helping to bale hay. Mr.
McKenzie had never seen us before. It was characteristic of his generosity and his willingness to help the man who was down. We paid the money back and have always been grateful to him."

Peter Wilcox said: "I was deputy sheriff and jailer under Mr. McKenzie in the early days. He was a true friend, honorable in all his dealings, his word
was good as a written contract and he helped many a poor man without advertising it to the rest of the world."

Was City Booster.
General E. A. Williams said that in the early days Alex. McKenzie was always on hand when any kind of publications were on hand. He was always deeply interested in everything pertaining to Bismarck. In the pioneer days when the men of Bismarck met
about town, most of their conversation
pertained to the problems and happenings in the making of the state, declared Mr. Williams. Mr. McKenzie was public-spirited and always took a leading part in the discussions.

City's Most Prominent Citizen.

W. H. Webb said:
"Bismarck has been the home of several men who have become very prominent in the life of the state and of the nation. Probably none have achieved alone as large a measure of success as

AUTO THIEVES
ARE CAPTURED

Farmers Pose in Minnesota
Successful in Hunt

(By the Associated Press.)
Wabasha, Minn., June 23.—Two alleged auto thieves are in the Waba-sha county jail and a third is surrounded today by a posse of farmers in the "Brown School" West Albany
township, about 10 miles from here.

One of the prisoners received a slight gunshot wound late last night during an interchange of shots between the fleeing trio and the posse. The men were captured about four miles from Wabasha after an all night search.
The third, however, escaped through the cordon of farmers and secreted himself
in the Brown School.

Farmers yesterday noon notified
Sheriff Ed Fitzgerald that a car was stolen and he immediately took up the chase. When about four miles from Wabasha the three alleged thieves held up Sheriff Fitzgerald, took his gun away and forced him to walk back to town.

He immediately formed a posse
which took up the chase.

The identity of either of the prisoners
is not known and they refused to give any information as to their name or home.

ARREST 15 IN LONDON RAIDS
AFTER KILLING

London Combed For Those Responsible For Assassination
Of Sir Henry Wilson

HUNT FOR INSTIGATORS

While Those Actually Committing Crime Were Caught Police Hunt "Higher Up"

(By the Associated Press.)

London, June 23.—Fifteen men and one woman were arrested in the raids
throughout London last night in connection with the assassination of Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson. It was announced in the house of commons this morning by Austen Chamberlain, the government leader.

The police investigating the assassination of Field Marshal Wilson have come into possession of documents says the Central News today, disclosing a conspiracy to take the lives of a number of prominent persons, and conduct a campaign of outrage.

The assassination of Field Marshal
Sir Henry Wilson has stirred England to the depths. Feelings of sorrow and dismay are mingled with apprehension of further outrages, as it is understood other members of parliament have been threatened.

Taken Red-Handed.

While the actual murderers were taken red-handed, a strenuous hunt for possible instigators of the crime is being conducted, and detectives last night
raided all the known haunts of Sinn Feiners in London.

In connection with the reports of a Sinn Fein plot, the statement is made that certain houses, including the Wilson residence, have been mysteriously
marked recently and the home of Lord
Carnarvon was guarded by armed police
last night.

Field Marshal Wilson it is learned,
had received threatening letters for some time but paid no heed to them.
The question of arming the police
with automatic pistols is being considered by the government and Scotland
Yard in view of the tragedy.

It is taken for granted that Sir Henry
will be given a great public funeral.
The likelihood is suggested of burial in St. Paul's, the resting place of many of Britain's most noted warriors.

Royalty Expresses Sorrow

Condolences continued today to pour in on Lady Wilson who was waiting upon by an equestrian sent by the king and queen bearing an expression of their sorrow. The Prince of Wales also sent a personal messenger and the dinner
in celebration of his birthday has been abandoned.

Prime Minister Lloyd George sent
this telegram: "I am deeply shocked at the ghastly crime. I can find no words to express my consternation and grief.
Please accept all my sympathy in your
terrible trouble."

Efforts to trace the crime to the investigation of any special persons or parties in Ireland had not succeeded. In Ulster it seems to be widely taken for granted that the Irish Republican Army was responsible, but no proof is offered and General Owen O'Duffy's denial stands unchallenged.

Everybody Uneasy

All reports from Ireland indicate that the murder has produced an uneasy
feeling among law abiding people, apart
from the natural indignation at the crime. The Belfast correspondent of the Times telegraphed his paper that if the assumption there that the Sinn Fein was responsible shall prove correct, the situation will immediately become one of extreme gravity.

The Times' Dublin correspondent
says the news of the murder was received there almost with despair as coming at a time when there were growing prospects of improved relations between the North and South. He added:
"The murder will be regarded as an act of war upon Ulster and will stir up passions which may lead to terrible events on both sides if the statesmanship of both governments does not avert
the calamity."

MAY SUSPEND
ARMY PROMOTIONS

(By the Associated Press.)

Washington, June 23.—Suspension of promotion of all army officers below
the grade of colonel, effective at once,
was understood to have been decided upon by the senate military committee today. The action was taken largely as a result, it was said, of provisions included in the annual army appropriation bill which places a six months bar
against promotions after July 1.

FAST ST. PAUL
TRAIN DERAILED

(By the Associated Press.)

Winona, Minn., June 23.—Ten passengers suffered minor injuries early today when six coaches of the Twin City Special were derailed one mile east of Rockland, Wisconsin, on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad.

A broken rail is believed to have been the cause of the derailment. The all-steel coaches left the rails while the train was traveling at a speed of thirty-five miles an hour. Sixty-three passengers escaped injury.

The passengers were all able to resume their journey.

DEATH LIST MAY RANGE FROM 27 TO 54; GOVERNOR SMALL DEMANDS IMMEDIATE ACTION

State's Attorney Doubts If Anything Will Result From Probe—
Head of Miners' Union Denies Responsibility for Massacre

(By the Associated Press.)

Waukegan, Ill., June 23.—Governor Len Small at noon today received a telegram from Colonel S. M. Hunter, representative of the adjutant general at Herrin, placing the blame for the rioting which led to the massacre of more than 25 non-union workers on the shoulders of the Williamson county officials.

Colonel Hunter, who was sent to Herrin a week ago
to report to the governor and Adjutant General Black
on the situation, told the governor in today's message
that he at no time thought the Williamson county authorities could handle the situation and that they should have asked for troops before the rioting started.

Both Colonel Hunter and Sheriff Melvin Thaxton,
wired Governor Small that there was no need for troops at this time. The telegram arrived just as court was adjourning today in the governor's conspiracy trial.

D. E. Duty, state's attorney of Williamson county, telegraphed the governor that the list of dead totaled 22, with 11 wounded.

(By the Associated Press.)

Herrin, Ill., June 23.—Official investigation of the mine war which killed from 27 to 43 near here, began today in response to insistent demands from Governor Len Small for action by local authorities, when Coroner McGowan announced that an inquest would be held immediately and State's Attorney Delouis Duty stated that a special grand jury would be convened following the inquest to investigate the massacre.

The state's attorney expressed doubt that any definite results would be obtained through the investigation, saying that it was virtually impossible to obtain evidence. He insisted however, that every possible step would be taken and telegraphed Governor
Small an official statement to that effect.

FEDERATION OF LABOR ELECTS
GOMPERS AGAIN

Veteran Leader Is Named President of A. F. L. for the Forty-First Time

HE HAD NO OPPOSITION

Few Contests Mark the Selection
Of Officers at the Annual Convention

(By the Associated Press.)

Cincinnati, O., June 23.—President
Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, was re-elected without opposition today at the federation's annual convention. It was his 41st election to the office.

After the unanimous vote had been cast for Mr. Gompers a demonstration broke loose among the delegates which continued a few minutes. Then Mr.
Gompers added:

"I shall endeavor to give the best
that is in me."

The convention also re-elected James Duncan of Quincy, Massachusetts, representing the Granite Cutters' Union as first vice president; Joseph F. Valentine, Cincinnati, Moulders' Union, second vice president; Frank Duffy, Indianapolis, Carpenters' Union, third vice president; William Green, Indianapolis, Miners' Union, fourth vice president; W. D. Mahon, Detroit, Streeter men's Union, fifth vice president, and T. A. Ricker, Chicago, Garment Workers' Union, sixth vice president.

The first contest developed when Thomas F. Flaherty of Washington, representing the postoffice clerks' union
was nominated to oppose the re-election of Jacob Fischer of Indianapolis, president of the barbers' union as seventh
vice president of the federation.

Mr. Fischer defeated Mr. Flaherty for seventh vice president on a vote of 17-125 to 17,729, and then Matthew Wolf of Chicago, representing the Photo Engravers' union, was re-elected eighth
vice president without a contest.

In the second contest, Daniel J. Tobin of Indianapolis, president of the Teamsters' union won re-election as treasurer over Joseph A. Franklin of Kansas City, Kansas, president of the Boilermakers' union. The vote was Tobin 18,519; Franklin 12,542.

The election of officers was completed except election of fraternal delegates, by the re-election without opposition of Frank Morrison of Washington, as secretary. He is a member of the Printers' Union, and has been secretary for 25 years. The delegates arose and applauded the re-election of Morrison.

Portland Is Chosen

Portland, Oregon, was chosen over Houston, Texas, as the seat of the next convention which will be held in October, 1923.

Benjamin Schlesinger of New York,
president of the Ladies' Garment Workers and Edward J. McGovern of Boston, president of the Plasterers'
Union, were elected fraternal delegates to the British Trades Union Congress to be held next September, and William E. Hulsebeck of Cincinnati was named as delegate to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress which meets in August.

Opponents

(By the Associated Press)
Charles R. Davis, for twenty years congressman from the Third Minnesota district, was nominated on the Republican ticket in Monday's primary, over Reuben Thoreen of Stillwater, who had the indorsement of the district convention, complete unofficial figures today showed.

An error in tabulation in Rice county disclosed when the official canvass was completed today cut down Thoreen's vote by nearly 400 and made the final unofficial figures for the district: Davis 20,808; Thoreen 19,558.

St. Paul, Minn., June 22.—With one precinct missing today in returns of Monday's primary, Representative Charles R. Davis leads his opponent, Reuben Thoreen, by a margin of 211 votes for the Republican nomination in the Third Minnesota congressional district.

So close has been the race between Davis and Thoreen, who was endorsed by the district Republican convention that although figures from the missing precinct may not alter the standing in the unofficial count, it is expected that the official count will be necessary before the outcome is determined.

Thoreen and Olsen, six out of 277 precincts. Davis, 20,242; Thoreen, 20,031. Senator Kellogg, Republican, and Mrs. Anna Dickie Olsen, Democrat, continued to maintain a safe majority over their opponents, Lundeen and Meighen.

According to dispatches from Washington today, Senator Kellogg intends returning to Minnesota to conduct an active campaign previous to the fall election.

Mr. Olsen received word at her home in Clouquet that William G. McAdoo, who was secretary of the treasury under the Wilson administration, will visit Minnesota to speak in her behalf.

TARIFF BILL IS TAKEN UP

Bonus Bill Is Made Special Order
Of Business After Tariff

(By the Associated Press)
Washington, June 22.—Proceeding under a program which makes the soldiers' bonus bill the special order of business immediately after the final vote on the tariff measure, unless it is disposed of before that time, the senate resumed consideration of the tariff bill.

A motion giving this status to the bonus measure was adopted by a vote of 52 to 2 yesterday after an all day fight at the outset of which an attempt to get the bill before the senate was defeated 51 to 22. The motion as finally adopted, however does not preclude a motion to take up the bonus before disposal of the tariff bill and several senators have given formal notice that they would continue to press for prior action on the compensation measure.

It was pointed out that the action of the senate in making the bonus measure the special order of business at an indefinite date has but few precedents, date being fixed in virtually all instances of such procedure.

Later the Alabama senator announced that he withdrew the language he had used, stating that "this is not the place for language of that sort." He asked Senator Glass to do likewise and the Virginia senator said he was willing to withdraw any unparliamentary language used on the floor of the senate. That ended the incident.

THIRTY ROADS CHARGED WITH "FARMING OUT"

Seventeen Contract Cases Have Been Heard By the Board—
Decisions Expected Soon

(By the Associated Press)
Chicago, June 22.—Removal of one of the three issues on which railway employees are taking their strike vote was in prospect today following announcement by the railroad labor board that hearings will open Monday on the contract controversy in which thirty roads are charged with "farming out" work, contrary to the board's orders.

Seventeen contract cases have been heard by the board and decisions are expected soon.

Railroad executives continued to express belief there will be no walkout next month despite the declaration by union leaders suspension will be authorized if the rank and file of the rail unions favor a strike. John Scott, secretary of the railways employees department of the American Federation of Labor, declared the balloting thus far appears to disclose strong sentiment in favor of a strike in protest against the $125,000,000 wage reduction and other decisions by the board.

FIND POETESS KILLED HUSBAND

(By the Associated Press)

Paris, June 21.—Madame Marie Besarab, poetess, and playwright, was found guilty today of the premeditated murder of her husband, George, whose body was found concealed in a trunk at Nancy, two years ago. The court 1924.

found them were extenuating circumstances. She was sentenced to 20 years at hard labor.

Her daughter by her first husband, was also on trial, but was found not guilty.

Prisoners in English and Welsh prisons numbered about 11,800 in March, 1922, as compared with 17,800 in March, 1921.

CITIZENS ASK MR. MCKENZIE BE BURIED IN CITY

and a tightness on his chest and stated that he was going to have his physician look him over the next day.

No Previous Illness
The first intimation that his friends had of his illness was when he was called as a witness and his attorney asked for a continuance of his case owing to Mr. McKenzie's illness. An investigation disclosed the fact that he was at the Miller hospital near death. Thursday noon wires began to come to his friends that he was very low. Many of his friends left in hopes of seeing him alive. Several Bismarck people are in St. Paul now. Mr. Haggart who was in Bismarck last evening, left immediately for St. Paul.

Made Home at Club
Mr. McKenzie, upon his return this spring, made his home at the Minnesota Club and had adopted a very rigid diet and system of living because of his tendency to blood pressure.

Mr. McKenzie leaves a host of friends over the state. No man was more reticent of his affairs. He seldom wrote letters and then when he did they were just brief epistles. Many young men were given their start toward success by him and the many kindnesses performed will never be written and are only green in the minds of the beneficiaries. No man in the state had a bigger personal following than he did.

National Political Figure
He soon became a national figure in the affairs of his party. Many of his old time business friends moved to the Twin Cities and his interests took him more and more to St. Paul and eastern cities. He became associated with Mr. Cook of the Cook Construction company being a partner in that business. The affairs of that company were liquidated a short time ago and practically all of Mr. McKenzie's affairs were put into shape before his death.

No man was more genial to meet. He understood men and in the game of politics no one knew the moves better and he played it on a grand and not a petty scale. For years his name has been a household word in North Dakota affairs. No one shunned publicity more than "Alex" as he was affectionately known to the Twin City newspaper men who sought him out daily at the Merchants hotel to get his views on North Dakota politics as well as the trend of national affairs. He knew more leading public men than any leader in politics in the Northwest. A prominent figure at every national convention for years, he participated in the deliberations of the inner circles. He was a standpat Republican, a stalwart in all things political and prided himself upon his unyielding adherence to political convictions. In a political battle he gave no quarter, but he held the respect of his enemies and often came out of the bitterest controversy, only to placate forces that had but a short time before fought most bitterly.

Married Bismarck Girl
Alex McKenzie married Anna Hays, a Bismarck girl, in November, 1873. His son, John McLean, was born the following year and died at the age of 9 years, of diphtheria, at their home on Main street and is buried at the local cemetery. He had two daughters, May and Anne.

His daughter, May McKenzie, married Charles B. Foster, general traffic manager on the Canadian Pacific, and resides in Montreal, Canada. She has two children, Anne, age about 14; and Alexander, age about 12. Anna McKenzie married Mr. McDonald, a French Canadian, and lives in Montreal. Mr. McKenzie was born in Canada in 1851 and is survived by his two daughters.

In a letter to Mrs. Mary McLean from Hazel Alsterberg, his secretary, dated June 21, she mentioned that Mr. McKenzie was in St. Paul but said that "Mr. McKenzie has been here but he is not spending much time at the office."

The first news of his death came in a wire from Miss Alsterberg to John Caulfield, manager of the Bismarck Water Supply company. Soon after the Associated Press, St. Paul, sent a bulletin to the Tribune office.

Alexander McKenzie was born in Scotland, and was so thoroughly a man of that land that in the early years in North Dakota he spoke the language fluently. He was born in 1851. He came to North Dakota with the Northern Pacific railroad construction. He was in charge of tracklaying west of Fargo in 1872, the first definite date preserved of him in this state. It is reported that with another youth, he walked across the prairies from Valley City to Bismarck.

Bismarck first knew him in 1873, when the railroad reached this point. He quit railroad and fitted himself into the community, where he was to spend the early years of his life. He first engaged in a small manufacturing enterprise but when the sheriff of Burleigh county was drowned in 1874, McKenzie was appointed to the place. He was elected sheriff in 1876 and was re-elected four times. At the same time he was deputy United States marshal for this district.

Single Peace Officer
During the time McKenzie was sheriff, Bismarck was the end of the train. The bad man of the frontier, the soldier of the Indian countries and the freighter from the Black Hills mixed here and McKenzie was the single peace officer in the territory. In addition to his work as sheriff he sometimes carried messages to the forts scattered throughout the Indian country across the river.

Mr. McKenzie served as Republican national committeeman from North Dakota for many years. He numbered among his friends and political associates, James J. Hill, Boies Penrose, Murray Crane, and the present Chief Justice Taft, the latter having represented him in some Canadian suits while he was a member of the law faculty at Yale university.

Headed Construction Company
Leaving business affairs in North Dakota, McKenzie associated himself with the Cook Construction company of St. Paul, and did a large contracting business. He is still interested in a large ranch at Fort Yates and owns stock in the Bismarck Water company plant.

During the last few years he has devoted his time largely to his own business, but always kept in close touch with political affairs. His knowledge of the political leaders of the states considered as the "Northwest"—the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota—made him an invaluable assistant in matters pertaining to this territory. He took part in the deliberations of the Republican national convention that nominated Warren G. Harding for president.

Mr. McKenzie started to fail in the winter of 1920 when he went to Arizona for his health. He returned to St. Paul in the fall of 1921 and was confined to St. Joseph hospital. He spent the winter in California, returning to St. Paul early in May. He had expected to return to North Dakota for a few days before primary, Wednesday next.

He married and was the father of two daughters and a son. The wife and son died a few years ago, but the daughters are living in Montreal, Canada.

Married in 1873.
Mary Hays, who became the wife of Alex McKenzie, was a pretty little Irish girl. McKenzie knew her when he lived in Brainerd, Minn. They were married in the fall of 1873 and built a house about where the Hinkley building stands.

When General Williams first came to Bismarck he visited the tent over which was the sign "Truedell-McKenzie" one of the early restaurants in Bismarck. In April of 1872 or 1873, McKenzie and Truedell came here from Brainerd, Minn., and started the restaurant which they ran but a few months.

When Alex McKenzie had rheumatism in the winter of '73, John Dunn and E. A.

Williams sat up with Alex and made him a tonic from herbs and roots.

In 1881 and 82, when city property was on the boom here Alex McKenzie and Coffee entered the real estate business.

Hyge McKenzie made his first money by laying out special additions. His wife has been dead for about 20 years.

PIONEER EFFORTS OF ALEX MCKENZIE FOR BISMARCK

my friend, Alex McKenzie. I have known him since 1884 when he was sheriff of this county, and have taken a personal interest in what he has accomplished for himself, for North Dakota and for Bismarck.

"We have lost a friend whose place will be hard to fill, he has probably done more than any other one man for Bismarck, and very few men have his ability."

Mrs. Mary McLean:
"Alex McKenzie was generosity itself. While he was a self made man himself, he never forgot the poor people. He pensioned a number of old folks in Bismarck. Alex McKenzie may have had some enemies, but he has a host of royal friends who will never forget him."

Mrs. M. H. Jewell:
"I was always more impressed by the love which Alex McKenzie showed for his children than by any other charge. Veritable, although he was one of the biggest hearted and most generous men I ever knew."

Mrs. John P. Dunn:
"When Alexander McKenzie did any thing for the public or for people, he did it without ostentation. It will always remember the way in which he used to buy food at our church socials, pay for it and then leave it lay on the tables."

Edward G. Patterson, who named the McKenzie hotel after Mr. McKenzie said:
"The death of Alexander McKenzie has thrown me into great sorrow. He was my closest friend. I have known him since I was a young boy and for over thirty years when he was in Bismarck he lived at my hotel and I learned to know him and of his good principles and good character. Mr. McKenzie was always trying to help some one. He was always busy giving some one an opportunity to succeed. His big heartedness was one of the best things about him and he had the biggest personal following of any man I ever knew. Not only the state of North Dakota has suffered a loss but the entire Northwest and I might say the nation as he was considered one of the big men of the country."

Just a few nights ago I talked to him over long distance at St. Paul and he said he had not felt better in years. Those who knew him grieve as I do."

William Laist, who has served as custodian of the capital for 27 years, and knew of many of Mr. McKenzie's activities said "He was influential in getting the capital located here. He was always a booster for this country and thought Bismarck would be a big town. When he made a promise he always kept it and he always stuck by his friends."

D. J. McGillivray said that "Mr. McKenzie was a hard worker, active and energetic. He succeeded because the people he dealt with had confidence in him. He was easy to get acquainted with and he was quick to size up the character of a man."

An incident of Mr. McKenzie's generosity and loyalty to friends was related by D. J. McGillivray. He said that about five years ago Mr. McKenzie heard that Mr. Wilcox was in a serious condition. He sent word to Bismarck that he wished to see Mr. Wilcox on business. Mr. Wilcox went to St. Paul. Mr. McKenzie induced him to submit to examination of noted physicians, and on their advice to undergo a serious operation, which was successful. Mr. McKenzie paid all expenses.

Mr. McKenzie demonstrated his courage in the days when hostile Indians roamed the plains, William Falconer said. Recalling incidents of Mr. McKenzie's life he said:

"Alex McKenzie came to Dakota territory in 1867 with John Stevenson's train which was carrying supplies to Fort Rice. There he was employed by the military authorities to carry important dispatches to Ft. Buford, passing through a country infested with hostile Indians. He afterwards returned to Dakota territory in 1872, then a young man of 22 years of age."

"In connection with the construction of the Northern Pacific railroad and during that summer he had charge of track-laying on the line west from Fargo. After completion of the road he came to Bismarck in 1873 and was interested in the manufacture and sale of carbonated drinks. After the county was organized in 1873 and the first county officers were elected in 1874 he was appointed sheriff to fill a vacancy caused by the drowning of Sheriff Miller in the Missouri river. He was elected sheriff the ensuing election, in 1876, and held the office 10 years."

"It was through him that Gaul, Rain-in-the-Face and other noted Indians were induced to become part of an exhibit at New Orleans in 1882. He had charge of the exhibit of Burleigh county at the country."

Minnesota state fair later and this exhibit was awarded the banner as the best of any county along the line of the Northern Pacific railway.

"He never held any office except that of sheriff and deputy United States marshal, although he could have had any office in the gift of the people if he so desired."

Was Staunch Republican
"In 1882 he attended the session of the legislature in Yankton and it was through his persistent labor that Dakota territory gained its act of territorial institutions, the penitentiary being located here, the agricultural college at Fargo and the university at Grand Forks. He was Republican national committeeman during the Roosevelt administration."

"He was a member of the territorial capital commission and it was through his efforts, together with Gen. E. A. Williams, that the territorial capital was located at Bismarck."

"He always was a staunch Republican and during the senatorial contest, when he was Senator Casey's manager and Senator Casey was up for re-election, a number of the Republican members broke away and voted for Bosch, a Democrat, electing him United States senator. Mr. McKenzie characterized this by saying: 'I bow to the Bonedict Axiom of the Republican party and traitors of North Dakota.'"

TO YOU WHO ARE LEAVING THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

JUST HOW ANXIOUS ARE YOU TO GET AHEAD? Your ambition says you are willing to go to any honorable extreme, but it is by your actions that the world will know what you really are. The poorest workman in the hardest, lowest-paid job probably once had ambitions just as lofty as those you now entertain. But he failed to take any steps toward realizing those ambitions. He made plans, but he always put off making the start. He waited for a fortune to fall in his lap. He isn't waiting any longer. He realizes his mistake as he faces the daily treadmill of existence. It is now too late for him to turn back.

MILK COW IS CROWNED QUEEN IN NO. DAKOTA

New Salem Holstein Tour Evidence of High State of Cow On North Dakota Farms

The milk cow is surely, though perhaps slowly, becoming the queen of western North Dakota farms.

This could not be doubted by those who observed the great crowds, the deep and wide-spread interest manifested in the second annual automobile tour to the New Salem Holstein Breeding circuit yesterday. Nor was a visitor escape the proud pride on the part of the circuit members in their purebred Holstein cattle, and their apparent prosperity in the center of an area hard hit by crop failures.

New Salem has aroused competition among various counties of western North Dakota. There were units from Mercer, Oliver, Hettinger and other counties west of the river who sensed the value of the advertising New Salem has given Morton county, and their delegations were loaded down with literature boosting their own counties. All those from the Slope district sensed that New Salem circuit has taken the lead, and other counties must fall in line or fall behind.

At the farm of John Klusman, where the hundreds of autos parked for lunch, there were several speeches at a meeting held in a little grove, with G. W. Randlett, director of the extension division of the state agricultural college, presiding.

Benz is Cheered
Enthusiasm was invoked by F. Benz, agricultural agent of the Northern Pacific. Mr. Benz is a farmer, one of the biggest in the state of Washington. He said he was helping promote agriculture as agent for the Northern Pacific not because of the money paid him but because he believes it is the greatest business on earth.

He told his hearers: That successful farming requires a high order of business acumen; that the successful farmer must be a deep thinker; that there must be cooperation between the farmer and his family, between farmers and townspeople. That farming is the greatest business in the world, and the farmer should be proud of it; that the farmer who will go away and leave his business in the hands of a $30 a month hand ought to fall.

Mr. Benz, speaking as one farmer to another, indulged in plain speech, pointed out what he thought were shortcomings of farmers and declared that farming will not come into its own until the farmer realizes his state in society as engaged in the greatest of all businesses.

Bell Speaks to Crowd
President John Lee Coulter, of the agricultural college; Sam F. Crabbe, president of the North Dakota Dairyman's Association; A. C. Goltrap, of Hettinger county, head of the Holstein association of the state; E. F. Flint, dairy commissioner; E. G. Catron, deputy commissioner of agriculture and labor; Hugh D. Downey, George Hise, county agent of Morton county; Max Morgan and others spoke.

J. L. Bell, president of the Bismarck Rotary club, said that it was a real pleasure for the Bismarck Rotary club, with the cooperation of Bismarck citizens, to be able to bring to the tour over 800 people. He declared the New Salem circuit had been a great impetus to the dairy industry in the state.

One of the features of the trip was the showing of a cooperative pasture, used by four farmers. The visitors were told that some of the high-grade Holstein sires were cooperatively owned, and that in building silos and in purchase of other machinery the farmers on the New Salem circuit have cooperated in buying.

It is the cooperation among the members of the circuit that has brought success, F. M. Sheppard said. Another speech was cheered when he said that the Northern Pacific railroad hauls more cream on its North Dakota lines than any other state. He brought his hearers to attention again, however, with a less pleasant note. He said that of all the states North Dakota stood last in the number of purebred sires.

Mr. Goltrap explained in facts and differences the difference in butter fat production between purebreds, or between daughters of purebreds, and "scrubs." There is only one conclusion which may be drawn, he said, and that is that the scrub cow is a money loser and the purebred or daughter of a purebred sire is a money maker.

Circuit Figures Given
Sam F. Crabbe, speaking in behalf of the National Dairy Show, urged the attendance of North Dakota people in St. Paul next October. It was due to the great interest manifested by North Dakota people that the show returned to St. Paul, he said.

The record of average production of the cows on the circuit was given by Francis Strong, superintendent, as follows for the last year: average milk production per cow, 7633.9 lbs.; butter fat production, 274.0 pounds; cost of feed $41.63 per cow; value of cost $95.46 per cow; profit, $54.20 per cow.

Following the tour there was a dedication in New Salem of the new slogan of New Salem—"Center of Prosperity." Among the speakers was Fred Conklin, of Bismarck, who congratulated the New Salem people on their slogan and their enterprise. The winner of the slogan prize, a Holstein bull calf, living outside North Dakota, a cash award of $100 was made and the bull was given to the holder of the lucky number, J. E. Kerk, of Dodge, won the calf. There was a banquet and dance last night in New Salem. There were bands on the tour from Mandan, Center and Beulah and a Bismarck orchestra played for the dance.

On the return of the Bismarck party to the city a buffet luncheon was served at the Grand Pacific hotel by the Rotary club. Many citizens who were unable to make the trip greeted the Rotary club guests.

F. A. Copelin, chairman of the transportation committee for the trip, stated today that he desired to thank all the business men who cooperated so willingly with the Rotary club in securing cars, registering guests and in assisting in so many other ways.

"Without this cooperation," he said, "it would have been impossible to have made such a success of the trip."

The following is a list of the people who attended the New Salem Dairy circuit as guests of the Bismarck Rotary club:

The Administration Record

The Nestos administration promised before the recall election that there would be honesty, economy, efficiency and open books in state affairs. This promise has been kept.

Bonds have been sold at premium prices in sufficient quantity to restore to school districts and all the political subdivisions their money which had been "frozen" in closed and questionable banks, the home builders' fizzle and other undertakings. This has been done without maintaining expensive headquarters in New York, Boston and other cities and without spending a dollar for advertisements in newspapers or periodicals anywhere.

Hail warrants that went begging at 80c on the dollar are now worth 100c on the dollar.

The average monthly cost of operating the Bank of North Dakota has been reduced from $12,611.07 to $5,683.20. This alone makes a saving of $83,134.44 per year.

Safe farm loans are being made at an average rate of more than $1,000,000 a month, while the average of the Frazier administration was less than $95,000 and many of them in excessive amounts to political pets.

The mill and elevator project at Grand Forks stood less than half finished for nearly a year under the Frazier administration. It is now nearly completed in six months under the Nestos administration.

Needless employees and appointees have been dismissed and competent ones have been substituted for incompetents.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1878)

ALEXANDER MCKENZIE

A great figure in North Dakota business and political life has passed away. Few men knew him intimately for while he had a legion of friends, only a certain circle enjoyed his complete confidence and knew the man as their intimate, loyal friend. Those who McKenzie befriended and assisted never forget the big genial fellow. No man could be as active in politics and not make enemies. In fact the success with which he worked from mean circumstances to the position of a national figure, brought in its wake jealousies, but it cemented also a great following of men who regarded him as an infallible leader. No man in any state had exactly the kind of an organization of faithful followers that Alexander McKenzie built up in the half century that he played a leading role in the affairs of North Dakota.

He came to Brainerd, Minn., a young man who had just left Canada. His great vitality, love of the open space of the prairie and of virile life of the frontier, urged him further west and he came to Bismarck ahead of the railroad, a poor boy but with a personality and a power of leadership that was to count mightily in the upbuilding of the state.

Then came the hard struggle of the pioneer days. He accepted his first and only office subject to the vote of the people, that of sheriff of Burleigh county. He was a good sheriff and did the job with a thoroughness that characterized every responsibility he accepted.

That office was but a stepping stone. He saw here a great future and helped to lay the foundations of Bismarck. McKenzie worked to secure recognition for this section of the state at all times. He was the best friend Bismarck or the Slope ever had. Above all men, he helped more to secure the investment of capital here and he was a tireless worker for Bismarck and his first achievement is written in the state's history when he moved the territorial capital from Yankton to Bismarck. The generalship of that contest is known to many living here today and the capacity of McKenzie for handling men and affairs was so well demonstrated that the state turned to him as a natural leader.

Few men, probably none in North Dakota affairs have been as roundly abused as McKenzie. McKenzieism became the name of a certain school of politics. Men who had been beaten in political battles used the language of the frontier in their abuse, but McKenzie plodded along winning victory after victory until he ceased to play the game with his old time zest and devoted more time to national politics and the handling of the great business ventures of which he was a part.

For the last few years while dominating a certain organization which while small in number, worked faultlessly under his master hand, he never took the deep interest in politics of the old days. Away from the state for months, no man knew where he was, the solitude of his own choosing to recuperate a vitality spent upon a most active and busy life.

Those who have enjoyed the confidence of Alexander McKenzie know what a lovable character he was. Rough and ready at times and even brusque when on the political firing line, there was a wonderful gentleness about him in the presence of sickness, misfortune or death. He never spoke his charity. There never can be written the generous things he did, the little acts of charity for the people with whom he rubbed shoulders. He was a man that could walk with the mighty and not lose the common touch. He was democratic in all things. Those who knew him, and he could call more men by their first names than any North Dakotan, were impressed with the facility with which he met all classes.

He was the friend of presidents and railroad magnates, but after a conference with them, it was not unusual to see him engaged in conversation with a man digging in the ditch. He loved to get all points of view. Unlearned as college educate, he had a store of knowledge and experience that many a man who carries a row of college degrees might well be proud of. He graduated with honors from the university of hard knocks and he knew a man whatever his station or calling. Few in this state were as good a judge of men.

In some ways, McKenzie was an enigma. His friends at times were puzzled. He had a way of his own in solving political as well as business problems. When in the midst of a political battle, he seldom slept but a few hours. A constitution of iron was his and many an adversary was worn down by the sheer force of his personality and vitality.

The popular conception of Alexander McKenzie was wrong. Those who did not share his confidence pictured him much in the same light as a Tammany boss working on the whims and prejudices of men to gain certain selfish ends. McKenzie played the game on a broader scale. He never sought to secure the passage of laws prejudicial to North Dakota. When its constitution was written, McKenzie was in the saddle and out of that convention came a constitution although now sadly mutilated was a benefit to the state and gave North Dakota a standing that brought a low of credit toward her centers when it was most needed.

McKenzie had and ever sought wise advisers. He was not stubborn, but a good listener. He had a facility of getting things done. Nothing but success interested him, but when the political scales went against him at times as they did, he was a good loser and began building his fences for the next battle.

Few men could tell a story better. He had the history of the state at his finger tips and it is a distinct loss to the state that he leaves none of it behind as a permanent record. It was his delight to corral a few old cronies and recount the early history of this state and the interesting phases of the various battles.

McKenzie was the friend of Presidents McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. He was often called into political conferences with the great leaders in national politics. No man was more sought after for advice.

But he was not a politician only, although he dearly loved to play the game. He was a successful business. He brought to that the same shrewdness and sagacity that characterized his success in other fields. McKenzie amassed a large fortune. Successful as a railroad and general contractor he participated in some of the largest engineering jobs in the United States and Canada. The ownership of the Bismarck Water Supply company, farm and ranch lands, raising of stock and interest in oil properties indicate that he was a man of business affairs.

He was a unique figure in the history of the state and he will be missed by the people of North Dakota for wherever Alexander McKenzie was, North Dakota had a friend and her people a worthy champion.

PRICES

An upward movement in prices is now "distinctly visible the world over," says a report by National City Bank.

In America, average wholesale prices have been on the up-grade for a year. The climb is slow, with an occasional slipback, but sure.

Whether this secondary period of inflation will be permanent, is doubtful. The world-wide price rise, however, has a silver lining for the consumer. It means that business recovery is worldwide, which is a healthy basis.

Prices rise with confidence. They fall with fear.

CORN-COBS

Corn-cobs are being turned into automobile fuel, also a hard-rubber substitute used for phonograph records, pipe stems, varnish, buttons and electrical parts.

This commercial alchemy happens not in Germany, famous for its utilization of by-products, but right here in America. It is the result of six years of research by La Forge and Mains, chemistry experts of the Department of Agriculture. Chemical engineering is one of the biggest fields open to young men today. It is the modern Aladdin's Lamp.

DANGER

Ever come close to getting killed by a train? Claim agents, checking up the 299 fatalities in railroad passenger travel during 1920, find that 64 were killed in getting on or off moving and standing-still trains.

Eighteen fell from moving trains, 28 fell to death from coach steps, 10 were under guard and jumped to escape.

Only 64 were struck by the train or run over. Carelessness is the cause of at least half of all accidents. If curious to check up Conan Doyle's word-pictures of the Hereafter, take chances.

SALTO TAIZO

In the death house at Sing Sing, close to the little green door, Salto Taizo, a Japanese, awaits execution in the electric chair the last week in June.

Taizo will die a Christian. His fellow-slayers in the death house have won him away from Buddhism.

There is something unique in the news—that conversion to Christianity is going on even in penitentiary death houses.

SYSTEM

In Canada, 300 Ojibway Indians started an "uprising" to seize lands which they claimed under an old treaty.

Not many years ago, such an uprising was a serious matter.

This particular war march, however, is called off because the Ojibways find themselves unable to finance it. The white man has stripped the forests nearly barren of food for wandering lighters.

The Ojibways, like the rest of us, are caught in "the system." They have returned to their regular life—onion farming.

TRIBUTE AWAITED
DECISION UPON
ANDY GUMP COMIC

After selling the Andy Gump comic to The Bismarck Tribune, The Chicago Tribune owners of this feature decline to serve this paper longer owing they allege to the fact that territorial rights in this section had been previously contracted for.

The Tribune has taken steps to compel the Chicago Tribune to deliver this feature under its agreement made several weeks ago. In the event The Chicago Tribune under its contracts now existing cannot furnish The Tribune with the comic, one equally as good will be supplied the Tribune family.

Management of The Tribune Company regrets the attitude of The Chicago Tribune in selling the feature and then withdrawing it on the grounds that this territory is already under contract. Every possible means will be used to secure a reversal of the decision.

ADVENTURE OF
THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

The Twins were on their way up to the Moon when they met the Weatherman, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow riding to meet them on his magic umbrella.

"Hello!" called Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, "did you find the Moon-Man?"

"No," answered Nancy. "And we asked everybody we met."

"Well, hop on behind me," said Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, "and I'll tell you what happened on the Moon after you left."

As soon as Nancy and Nick were nicely settled and the big green umbrella was turned Moonwards again, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow told his story:

"I was in the engine room where Mr. Peabody keeps all the handles for running the Moon when I heard someone laughing fit to kill."

"I looked out and there was Comet-Legs, the raucous fellow, who has caused all this mischief, shaking something out of a salt-shaker all over the Moon."

"Oh, that was the shaker with the magic powder," exclaimed Nick. "He stole it!"

Mr. Sprinkle-Blow nodded. "And what do you suppose was happening? Every time the stone and flower turned, the minute the powder touched it, I never saw such a sight in my life."

"What did he do?" asked Nancy. "Do!" exclaimed Sprinkle-Blow. "I chased him. I waited till I saw everything. When I caught him, the shaker fell out of his hand and the powder spilled. The next thing I knew the Moon itself had begun to quake!"

"Then the little Moon-man baby was right," Nick said to Nancy, "and it wasn't a dream after all. What happened then, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow?"

"I whistled for my Four Winds," said the Weatherman, "and they came hurrying as fast as they could from Bluster-Gust-land."

TODAY'S WORD

Today's word is MORON. It has not yet been long enough in use to appear in the dictionary, but usually is pronounced MORE-ON, with the two syllables almost equally accented.

It means a man or a woman who is mentally deficient, but above the mental grade of an idiot; an adult with a child's mind; a person, physically mature, whose mental growth stopped at the age generally so placed—of 8 to 12.

It comes from Greek "moros," fool. It's used like this: "A moron, neglected, is a danger to society, but with proper training, he may become a contented and useful laborer."

A THOUGHT

Who so stoppeth his ears to the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself and shall not be heard.—Proverbs 21:13.

Charity gives itself rich; covetousness hoards itself poor.—German proverb.

With the Movies

CAPITOL.
The ever-welcome Fox star, Shirley Mason is due to open at the Capitol theater Monday in "The Ragged Heiress," a picture dealing with the trials and misfortunes of a young girl who has been reared in poverty, ignorant of the fact that she is the rightful possessor of a fortune. The story, as outlined, is one abounding in pathos, sprinkled with delicate humor, and progressing toward a pretty romance and the unraveling of a mystery which is hardly a mystery to the audience.

REBE DANIELS HAS FRECKLES
Would you believe it? Rebe Daniels has freckles! The tell-tale evidence was accumulated on a month's "location" in the rough and rugged Arizona cow-country for scenes in "North of the Rio Grande," a western picture in which she co-stars with Jack Holt.

The appearance of the freckles is explained by the fact that this picture offered the first long sequence of "out door stuff" pretty Rebe has done for several years.

They do say that the exquisite Danielian nose became pitifully decorated with the brown "beauty spots" generally considered to be the exclusive property of Wesley Barry, the juvenile of the screen.

"North of the Rio Grande" is the attraction at the Eltinge for Friday and Saturday. "Nutting the Leopard" and an Aesop Fable, "The Rich Cat and the Poor Cat" are also on the program.

WHY PASTOR QUIT CHURCH TO BECOME

THE REV. WILLIAM REESE

By NEA Service.

Cincinnati, O., June 23.—Many years Rev. William Reese of New Orleans preached religion. "He who preaches also must practice," he said.

He gave up his church, took a job as an iron worker, and joined the union in order that he might get closer to men and learn their needs and do what good he could for them.

"When I left my church—Congregationalist—and interested myself in the service of unions, I merely changed pastures," he declares. "Through the union I continue to do the work of the Lord. The function of the union is to make real the brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God."

"Among the agencies which have succeeded in bringing about the most successful results in applying the principles of Christian teachings in practical every-day life stands the American Federation of Labor."

"By severing myself from all denominational ties, I enabled myself as a pastor to serve all men regardless of creed."

Last year a workman was killed in New Orleans and left a widow and 10 children. They were homeless and Rev. Reese asked, "Who will give them a home?"

One man donated a lot. The building material men of New Orleans gave all the materials. The workmen of the city donated their labor.

"They worked after working hours in the evening," says Rev. Reese. "They worked on Sunday. It was a sacred service—as good as going to church on Sunday. The family now has a home that is worth $7,000."

Rev. Reese is financial secretary and treasurer of the Building Trades Council of New Orleans. He is in Cincinnati as delegate to the meeting of the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L.

"MURDERED MAN" IS FOUND JUST IN TIME TO AVERT "LEGAL MURDER"

By Alexander Herman

Innocent men have convicted themselves of murder! Having confessed to crimes which they did not commit, they have been declared "guilty" and sentenced to die. By a lucky turn, some of them have been saved from the death penalty, but others—who know?

The most famous of these cases is that of the Boorn brothers in Vermont. Stephen and Jesse lived in Manchester together with a brother-in-law named Rosell Colvin, who was a bit eccentric.

One day they had a quarrel and Colvin disappeared. Months and years passed—and no explanation was made of the absence. The neighbors began to talk. Some of them recalled that the Boorns had said that they had put Colvin "where the potatoes would not freeze."

Arrest Brothers
Children found a dilapidated hat which was recognized as the one Colvin wore on the day of his disappearance. A dog dug up some bones. An uncle of the boys had a dream in which the missing man came to him and told of being murdered. A barn was mysteriously burned. Feeling against the brothers was aroused.

Stephen was out of the state, but Jesse was arrested. In jail he confessed that his brother told him of killing Colvin with a blow on the head. Stephen was brought home. He denied his brother's statement. But it was used against him. Both men were sentenced to be hanged.

The case seemed so hopeless that Stephen confessed the crime in the expectation of mercy from the court. It was of no avail. But Jesse's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Deny Confessions
The brothers then told their at-

MEN BLIND TO WOMAN'S SUFFERING

How many men, think you, have any idea of the pain endured by women in their own household, and often without a murmur? They have no patience when the overworked wife and mother begins to get pale, have headaches, back-aches, faint spells, or is melancholy and cannot sleep. There is help for every woman in this condition, as evidenced by the many voluntary letters of recommendation which we are continually publishing in this paper for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to give it a trial. Adv.

PREUS URGES DAKOTANS TO SEND M'CUMBER BACK TO U. S. SENATE

Known Needs of People of State And Has Faithfully Sought to Advance Them, He Says.

A CLOSE ACQUAINTANCE

Fargo, June 23.—Gov. J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota spoke before a packed house here last evening for Senator McCumber and Gov. R. A. Nestos. He said in part:

"Twelve years ago I was a messenger in the United States Senate appointed to that position by Knute Nelson of Minnesota. While I was in Senator Nelson's office, I made the acquaintance of the senior senator of North Dakota. He was then recognized as one of the ablest and most upright public servants in the United States Senate. Since that time he has advanced rapidly in the esteem of his associates in Washington and today he is chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, the most important committee of that body. By virtue of his position as chairman of that committee, he is probably the most powerful man in the United States Senate. The Finance Committee is the committee which passes upon tariff legislation. The principal difference between the Republican and Democratic parties today is founded not upon state rights but upon the principles of tariff for revenue only or a free list as far as possible, whereas the Republican party stands for protective tariffs in the interests of the home producer, the farmer, the manufacturer, and the American laborer, to keep them from competing particularly with Canada, Europe, and the Orient. In addition to all this tariff legislation is inaugurated with the Finance Committee. The people of North Dakota are intensely interested in these two problems. First, a protective tariff on what the farmer produces; and secondly, short time rural credits for the farmers. Senator McCumber is in a better position to help North Dakota and Minnesota and the rest of our agricultural states in these two measures than any other man in the country. There are probably no two men who will agree in every particular on how a tariff bill should be drawn. I should doubtless differ with Senator McCumber for he is frequently a high protectionist where I would favor a low tariff in the interest of the people of Minnesota. Nevertheless he is the man whom the people of North Dakota and your sister states will have to look to for the best possible solution of the tariff question in the interest of our farmers.

"When Alexander Hamilton gave us his national bank, he thought in terms of commercial banking. He did not have the farmer in mind for he needed no banking facilities. Nor was the farmer considered when the national bank act was passed in the Sixties, nor was he considered particularly in connection with the federal reserve act. He was considered first in the federal farm loan act which established the federal farm loan banks which have done so much for the people of Minnesota and North Dakota, and wherein Senator McCumber contributed as much as any man in the country. Furthermore, he is as well advised of the farmer's need for short time credits as any man in the country. He knows that the farmers need short-time loans which shall not be called until he has harvested his crop and is ready to sell at the best market, and I would rather entrust this great problem of rural credits to his judgment and efforts than any man I know.

"His past record as a public servant, sound on tariff legislation and on banking problems makes him a most valuable servant not only to you people of North Dakota but to us of Minnesota. For this reason, I desire as an individual from a sister state to ask you to consider carefully his candidacy on primary day and cast votes for him if you really believe that in these as well as other public questions he has been sound and patriotic. Senator McCumber to my mind stands second to no public servant whom North Dakota has ever had, and I sincerely hope that he will be returned to the Senate.

Last fall when you had an election, the first recall election of officers in the history of the United States, I was invited to come here. I felt flattered at the invitation and accepted it. An old friend of mine, your now Governor R. A. Nestos, was your candidate for Governor and I favored his election for the reason that the Non-partisan League was to my mind sound in its economic problems. The problem of the League was to establish state-owned factories and other institutions to be owned and operated by the state.

"I favored the opposite thereof, to wit: private enterprise only. I stated then and repeat now, no state or other political unit can ever engage in private business and successfully compete with private enterprise and for the very patent reasons that when a person goes to work for himself he seeks to do all his strength and inventiveness and when he works under a civil service law or a political unit such as a state or nation, he is more interested in shorter hours, larger pay, and pension in old age, than he should be. You elected Governor Nestos. He has in my mind made you as good a Governor as anyone can demonstrate himself to be in the short period of time he has held that office.

"With his unusual acquaintance with your people, he has seen your problems and proceeded in a kindly way to give the difficulties with which the people of North Dakota are concerned, and I wish to congratulate him upon his success and it is my hope that your verdict as regards his achievements and that of those elected with him and appointed by him meets with the same approval as it does from myself of a sister state. You may wonder why a person from Minnesota is interested in North Dakota. It is a very simple matter when you stop to consider it. The great cities of Minnesota are maintained to a large extent by the farmers of North Dakota and your success means the success of those people in the State of Minnesota. Minnesota and North Dakota are different political governments and lines but their economic problems are intertwined and interwoven in a most intimate manner.

"When Senator McCumber asked me to go to North Dakota and make a few talks for him, I accepted with alacrity, not only because I wished to show my good will toward him and to thank him for his public services but because Minnesota is interested in North Dakota. I hesitated, however, lest some people might feel that I was an outsider and that I should not interfere with your politics, nor have I any desire to interfere with your politics. On the contrary, I would much prefer not to leave my home, but our state, as well as our nation, is interested in the North Dakota primary.

"Having called attention to Senator McCumber's record, as well as that of your Governor, I wish to speak directly to the people of North Dakota asking each person who casts a vote on this primary day to lay aside all questions of loyalty to political groups, self-constituted bosses and so-called leaders of thought and analyze the entire situation as it is upon its merits regardless of the effects of the political fortunes of any individual. This is a time when in North Dakota the common people should cut through the meshes of political machinations and lay aside the questions of these who desire to dominate state and national politics. To determine whether these two individuals, as well as the candidates for office running with them are faithful, honest, efficient servants or not, you should judge them upon the work which they have done in the past, not upon their political associations and affiliations, but by their records in public office in all the years they have held office. If this is done, the supporters of Senator McCumber will vote for Governor Nestos and the entire ticket endorsed at the Jamestown convention, and vice versa, the support of Governor Nestos and his ticket will support Senator McCumber. If I did not believe this would be done, I would not be here to plead in the interest of these two individuals."

Cobb's Tigers Took 11 Inning Battle From Leaders

(By the Associated Press)
Chicago, June 23.—Robinson's climbing Superbas with their pitching ace, Dutch Ruether, squeezed a 3 to 2 victory from the league leading Giants. It was Ruether's twelfth victory of the season. The lowly Phillies bested the Braves 5 to 4 and the Pirates, hitting heavily-trimmed the Cubs 8 to 6. The Cardinals and Reds had an off-day.

Cobb's Tigers took an 11-inning battle from the leading Browns 3 to 2 while the Yankees were defeated by the Red Sox 6 to 2.

Speakers' Indians were shut out by the White Sox 3 to 0, while the Mackmen and Washingtons were idle.

Cecil Downs, a right hand pitcher who came to the Chicago White Sox from Gonzaga University, Spokane, Washington, was released to the Kalamazoo, Michigan, club of the Central league, but will return to the Sox when the season up there closes in September.

Jack Hutchinson Leads in Britain's Golf Championship

(By the Associated Press)
U. S. STARS LEAD
Sandwich, England, June 23.—America stood virtually one, two, three in the British open golf championship, decided here today. Walter Hagen of Detroit won the championship with an aggregate score of 300. Jim Barnes of Pelham was tied with George Duncan of Great Britain for second with 301 and Jack Hutchinson, who held the title for 1921 came next with 302.

The American appeared to have swept the field, for unless J. H. Taylor, the British star, whose outward mark in the fourth round was a 97, and Gastiat of France, who has not turned in his score up to 5 p. m., should return unexpectedly low scores, Barnes will stand second and Hutchinson third.

Taylor's fourth round score was 76, for an aggregate of 303, or one stroke more than Hutchinson, the third American.

Sandwich, England, June 23.—Walter Hagen, American professional golf star, won the British open championship today.

The final scores of the three Americans were: Hagen, 300; Barnes, 301; Hutchinson, 302. Barnes' score for the last round was 73.

On the fourth round Jack Hutchinson took 76, giving him an aggregate of 302, or two more than Hagen had taken.

Walter Hagen, the American professional golfer, did the fourth round in the British open championship today in 72, giving him an aggregate for the four rounds of 300, which it is considered probable will win him the championship.

Sandwich, June 23.—Jack Hutchinson of Chicago, the title holder, took the lead in the third round today in the play for the British open golf championship, with an aggregate of 226 for the 54 holes. J. H. Taylor, Great Britain, was second with 227. Walter Hagen and Jim Barnes, the other two Americans were tied for third place each with 223.

Jack Hutchinson of Chicago, the title holder went out in the fourth round in 36, however, and should he make 37 on the homeward journey, giving him a 73, he would win by one stroke.

J. H. Taylor, Great Britain and Gastiat of France, each require 72 and Jim Barnes, the third American, a 71 to win.

GARRISON AND KRAUSE MEET

WILSON LICENSE IS REVOKED

(By the Associated Press)
New York, June 23.—The New York state athletic commission today revoked the license of Johnny Wilson of Boston, middleweight champion on the ground that he had failed to meet Harry Krause, Pittsburgh, in a match scheduled for Madison Square Garden last January.

At the same time the commission set July 10 as a time limit for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion to accept or decline the challenge of Harry Wills, New Orleans negro.

Johnson goes good
(By the Associated Press)
Minneapolis, June 23.—Harvest golf champion, will in all probability defend his title in the finals here tomorrow, as a result of his play in the first 18 holes of the semi-finals matches today.

When the first set of 18 holes had been played today, Johnston was 7 up on John Neimeyer, of Duluth. Johnston's card for the 18 holes was 73. At the end of the first 9 holes, he was 6 up on Neimeyer when he made a card of 34.

News of the Markets

HEAT, DROUGHT, FORCE WHEAT PRICES UPWARD

(By the Associated Press)
Chicago, June 23.—Heat and drought pointing toward likelihood of shrinkage in the crop yield tended to lift wheat prices today in the first part of the day. The market was buoyed by Liverpool quotations showed a greater upturn than had been looked for and opening of today's session indicated export business. On the advance however, selling pressure was increased and the market closed somewhat lower.
